IUIS CEO- job description:

The International Society for Immunology, IUIS, is an umbrella organisation of more than 60 national immunology member societies from all parts of the world and has as one of its major goals to prosper the crucial role of immunology in the broadest sense, including education and teaching of immunology world wide. To achieve these goals, IUIS has created a new position for a CEO, preferably with the following qualifications:

1. A scientific academic degree in immunology, biology, biochemistry and/or medicine.
2. Experience with management of scientific affairs.
3. Experience with translational immunology and medicine.
4. Good contact abilities with commercial incline.

The IUIS would like to employ the qualified applicant in first instance on a part time position (0.4 FTE) and for a defined period (3 to 6 months) which can be extended in time. The fee is negotiable and will be around 80,000.- USD (for a full time employment). The selected candidate is envisaged to seek contact with commercial companies like drug, pharmaceutical and other companies, to raise sponsoring in order to enhance the financial situation of IUIS. In principle, on the long term, the applicant will receive a % of the funds raised in sponsorship for IUIS. The CEO will report to the executive of the council on a regular basis.
